(9AM - 3:30PM)
Where: Georgia State University
College of Education and Human Development
30 Pryor Street, SW
Atlanta, GA 30303
Room 1030

TOPIC: This workshop will provide school and district leaders a deeper understanding of techniques and strategies necessary to support culturally and linguistically diverse learners and families integrate and succeed in their schools.

This hands-on session will:
• Review the legal requirements of working with immigrant and refugee students and families
• Overview the best practices related to culturally responsive leadership
• Discuss research-based techniques for teaching culturally and linguistically diverse learners
• Present strategies to help integrate culturally and linguistically diverse families

Participants are asked to bring demographic and achievement data of their district and schools populations as we will be working with this data throughout the workshop.
