PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The Instructional Coaches Collaborative is a learning forum for instructional coaches to strengthen their work while learning with their peers. In supportive, safe, and reflective dialogues with the facilitator and the participants, instructional coaches will understand their critical role as leaders of change. The facilitator will be an experienced educational leader who has a proven track record in instructional leadership.

The Collaborative is a one-year, cohort program that involves:

- 8 Monthly all-day seminars hosted at Georgia State University.
- Interactive learning sessions that model the coach/teacher relationship that fosters instructional improvement and student academic achievement.
- Support from leading experts in coaching, including: Jim Knight, Elena Aguilar, Stephen Barkley, Diane Sweeney, and research from leading coaching organizations.
- Topics include essential skills of coaches, principal-coach partnerships, effective feedback, building coaching relationships, scheduling, observation tools, and holding difficult conversations.

PARTICIPANT OUTCOMES

On completion of the Collaborative, participants will:

- Articulate the value of coaching in instructional development.
- Demonstrate what coaching looks like in school and how to use it most effectively.
- Be able to develop a partnership/relationship with those they coach.
- Be effective in creating learning conversations.
- Know where to start—the Big Four: behavior (classroom management), content, instruction, and formative assessments.
- Build upon reflection and personal evaluation.

FEE

$1,500 per participant (Partners)
$1,800 per participant (Non-Partners)

The comprehensive program fee covers tuition for all seminar sessions, all instructional materials, breakfast, and lunch on seminar days.
